Slow and steady:

THE LAW OF THE CAR PARK

Businesses with car parks, driveways and drive-through areas need to be aware of the legal requirements involved in maintaining road safety for these zones. Employers are responsible for ensuring that traffic is managed on site, speed limits are observed, and that all safety signs are visible and accurate.

The importance of signage

Signage plays an integral role in car park safety. It is vital to ensure that all hazards, risks and directional requirements are clearly demarcated with highly visible signs. The correct placement of signage is also critical to ensure instant visibility to both pedestrians and motorists.

Traditional traffic calming measures

There are a number of steps you can take to calm traffic and enforce speed limits on your site. Parking blocks, for example, can control the position of parked vehicles, while one way traffic spikes and flow plates can be used to prevent vehicles from moving in the wrong direction. Lockable hinged posts, barriers, line marking equipment, traffic cones and bollards will ensure that parking is well organised, speeds are maintained, and cars adhere to one-way traffic flows.

The future of the speed bump

With a view to revolutionise traffic management, we have developed an innovative speed bump that combats all the flaws of existing products. The Seton Speed Bump features a unique ground fixing system and an interlocking chevron design for exceptional durability, providing the ultimate traffic calming solution. While employers cannot completely control the actions of those visiting their site, it is important to mitigate the dangers involved in the workplace car park.

Restricting vehicle access to certain areas in an effort to avoid hazards and prevent accidents is essential. Bollards can be a simple and flexible solution which assist in effective traffic management.
